Children look up at the sky wondering what they will get today food or death.
Little souls carry burden, responsibility..
Yet the world failed them Their lives matter ,their stories matter,
Their homes turned into
dust and the sky
forgotten to be blue.
The cold in winters creep through three tents
Their pain is a reminder to be grateful of everything.
An apple fell on the ground and Newton
discovered gravity.
Thousands of bodies fall and still no one has discovered humanity..
Empty plates, tired eyes, and silent cries this is the cost of human suffering..
